As a Dragonii prince, duty has always come first.

So when the king orders me to join the galaxy's new mate-matching program, I obey. I expect politics. Diplomacy. Another obligation to endure.

I don't expect Jesse Wilson.

One look at the stubborn human rancher and I know my life is about to change. He's brave, loyal, infuriatingly independent, and completely uninterested in my title.

For the first time, I want something for myself.

Jesse

Getting disinherited should have been the worst day of my life.

Then a galactic AI informs me I've been matched to an alien prince I've never met.

Now I'm leaving Earth behind for a frontier colony on a distant world, where my new husband has wings, scales, a royal title, and a smile that makes it very hard to remember all the reasons this arrangement is probably a terrible idea.

The plan is simple: build a ranch, learn how to survive on an alien planet, and try not to fall head over heels for the prince who already calls me his mate.

Simple, right?

As media attention follows them across the stars and a growing colony struggles to find its footing, Jorhee and Jesse discover that building a life together may be the greatest adventure either of them has ever faced.

Johree- Dragonii Hearts: The Mates of New Haven is a heartwarming MM sci-fi romance featuring an alien prince, a human rancher, fated mates, marriage of convenience, colony life, found family, adorable children, a very pampered dog, and a guaranteed happily ever after.
