BOOK DESCRIPTION

I don't date my brother's teammates. End of story.

Or is it?

Harper's life is her career, and most guys don't vibe with it. No problem. One and done satisfies the score. Besides, after a disastrous fling with her brother's linemate she vowed it would never happen again.

Gavin sacrificed having a life for a goal he never quite netted. He's skating toward middle age and loneliness is hitting hard. But the constant travel and demands of his job don't exactly make women swoon.

A single blazing hot hookup shakes them both off their game. Harper is convinced one isn't anywhere close to done with him. And Gavin might finally have met someone worth a work-life-balance. Too bad they don't even know each other's real names.

Until they come face to face at the last place either ever expected. And Harper's forced to hide behind secretive fiery nights or risk shattering the most important promise she ever made.
