The small town of Velmora knows of the horrors I've committed. They whisper about the Grim Reaper taking souls and dropping bodies in her wake. I don't mind. They don't know my reasons and I don't owe it to them.

I thrive on their fear and hatred.

But it all changes when my eyes collide with his.

He's everything I'm not.

Innocent when my hands are stained with blood.

Destined to be something great while I'll slowly die in this cold town only known for the death that follows me. He's always looking for the good in me when there isn't anything worth saving left. It was taken from me years ago.

Slowly, he creeps through my walls and becomes mine. But one day he'll learn who I truly am, and when he does, I don't think I'll be able to survive without him when he's breathed life into me.

So I'll keep him no matter what, even if it destroys us both.

And it will.
