BOOK DESCRIPTION

He needs a girlfriend for the cameras. She needs a clinic. Neither one is telling the truth.

Rory Vance is the Foxes' golden boy: twenty-seven, one scandal away from losing his shot at the big leagues, and so good at being charming that he can no longer tell when he means it. A fake relationship with the town's most trustworthy woman would repair his image in six weeks flat.

Dr. Priya Nair is the town vet. She has never told a lie in her adult life, and she is a hundred and forty thousand dollars short of buying the clinic she loves before a developer turns it into a storage facility. She agrees to hold his hand in public, smile at the cameras and promise nothing untrue to anyone who hasn't signed up to be lied to. She reads every clause of the contract. She is very careful about section four.

Then there is a lamb at four in the morning, a kiss cam, a concussion, a mother flying in from Minneapolis, a leaked contract, and a best-of-five playoff series that comes down to one game, one overtime and one choice. The whole town wants them to win. They just have to stop performing long enough to say the true thing out loud.

Inside you'll find:

- Fake dating to real love, with a contract, a tricky clause and a very nosy town group chat

- A grumpy-sunshine flip: the charming athlete who performs for everyone, and the woman who sees right through it

- A playoff finale with a sudden-death overtime, a convoy of forty-one vehicles and a goat in sunglasses

- A community casserole gala, a mother who has opinions about dosa, and an ending that wraps up the whole series

- Closed-door heat: real chemistry, with the bedroom door closed

- A guaranteed happy ending

Sudden Death is a complete romance and the final book of the Fenwick Ridge Foxes series. Each book follows a new couple in the same town; this one brings all four couples together for the finale.

It's the one moment where it's only true.
