Berlin, November 9, 1989: The Word Read as "Later"

by Xing Li

BOOK DESCRIPTION

On the night of November 9, 1989, a Politburo spokesman answered a question with two ordinary German words. The duty officer at the Bornholmer Street checkpoint read them the way they were not meant to be read, and the barrier came up.What follows is a chronicle of the night the wall opened — of the soldiers who gave no order, the crowds who walked through, and the small hands that kept the records the world would read.
