BOOK DESCRIPTION

Corporate attorney Nova Hart has always been the dependable one. The daughter who never disappoints, the girlfriend who never asks for more. But when betrayal rips through her carefully controlled world, Nova does something she's never done before. She decides to walk away.

One final case stands between her and freedom: a high-stakes acquisition that sends her deep into Louisiana's oil country. It should be simple. But nothing about this case is simple. Because waiting for her isn't just a corporate merger, it's a covert operation.

Navy SEAL Gabriel "Snow" Iverson is used to danger, secrets, and trusting no one outside his team. Especially not a sharp-tongued attorney who stumbles straight into his mission. From the moment they meet, sparks fly, and not the good kind. Until they're forced to rely on each other.

Eighty-eight miles offshore, trapped on an isolated oil rig, Nova and Snow uncover a deadly conspiracy that is powerful enough to change the balance of modern warfare.

And the moment the wrong people realize what they know they become targets.

Now, with nowhere to run and no one to trust but each other, survival is uncertain. And the closer Nova and Snow get, the more they realize they're stronger together than apart.
