BOOK DESCRIPTION

ISABELLA

Some memories don’t stay buried.

For years, I kept my distance from the Death Squad. Not physically—we all shared the same orbit—but emotionally. They saw me as Sebastian’s little sister. Fragile. Untouchable. A survivor carefully pieced back together.

But survival isn’t the same thing as living.

When The Counselor challenges me to complete a bucket list, I find myself turning to the one man who has never looked at me with pity. Pavel Lenkov. The Russian. The Dancer.

He's is rough edges, has a filthy mouth, and a habit of seeing far too much. He was supposed to help me reclaim pieces of myself. Not become one.

Pasha makes me feel fearless enough to chase freedom, reckless enough to break rules, and safe enough to finally confront the darkness I’ve spent years avoiding.

The only question is…will he still want me when he learns the truth?

THE RUSSIAN

There were rules when it came to Isabella Caruso.The Artist. The little sister. Simple ones. Protect her at all cost. Respect her, always. And never dare to touch her.

I broke every single one.

What started as a favor quickly became something far more dangerous. One trip. One week alone together. One woman I couldn't stop wanting.

And Isabella? She was never fragile the way everyone believed. She was fire wrapped in silk. Beautiful. Haunted. Strong enough to survive hell itself while still daring to hope for more.

I should have known falling for her was inevitable. What I didn't expect was how quickly love could turn into obsession. Somewhere between pretending she was mine and realizing I never wanted to let her go…I forgot one important detail.

Sebastian Caruso—her brother—my best friend was going to kill me.

Lost & Found is a friends-to-lovers dark contemporary romance featuring a tattoo artist heroine, a professional dancer hero, found family, emotional healing, a protective hero, slow-burn tension, and a guaranteed HEA. It is the first book in Autumn and Pasha's duet and ends at a natural emotional stopping point before the conclusion in Bound & Broken.
