BOOK DESCRIPTION

Three complete romances. One Montana valley. Every love story starts with ink and ends with something nobody signed for.

In Claimed by the Rancher, mechanic Mara Ellis marries billionaire Callum Blackthorne to erase her family's debt, then finds forged water maps in the survey books that serve as her bride-price.

In The Rancher's Claim, heiress Lucia Diaz rides home to enforce her grandmother's will and locks horns with Miguel Santos, the foreman who guarded her birthright for fifteen years without knowing her name.

In The Rancher's Stand, sabotage hits the valley's irrigation grid, and overlooked ranch hand Danny Rayburn teams with weary attorney Sarah Tucker to catch a culprit hiding among friends.

Over 600 pages of slow burn, banter, land conspiracies, and hard-won happily ever afters. Read the trilogy readers call addictive small town romance, start to finish, in one sitting if you dare.
