BOOK DESCRIPTION

They compete in the sky—but the most dangerous collision may be falling in love.

For Ernie Pritchard and Millie Aldrich, it's loathing at first sight.

Ernie should be celebrating his record-breaking flight. Instead, the airmail pilot finds himself assigned to train Millie Aldrich—a dazzling celebrity aviatrix determined to beat his record and steal his thunder. Ernie can barely afford to keep his struggling family afloat on a pilot's salary, and the last thing he needs is a rival who turns every flight into a battle of pride.

Millie clawed her way from humble beginnings to international fame performing breathtaking aerial stunts, and she refuses to let any man stand in the way of her ambition. She's determined to prove that a woman can conquer the skies just as fiercely as any pilot alive. Falling for her infuriating instructor is the one risk she never planned to take.

As work forces them together, irritation ignites into an attraction neither expected. When a brutal winter storm strands them in a small town with only one hotel room left, the sparks between them become impossible to ignore.

But love may be the most perilous gamble of all. To claim the future they truly want, Ernie and Millie may have to risk the very dreams that lifted them into the sky.

Plane Passion continues the Mile-High Madmen series with a spirited historical romance set during the daring early days of aviation. Blending sharp banter, soaring ambition, and irresistible chemistry, this story celebrates fearless pilots, bold heroines, and the exhilarating moment when rivalry gives way to love.
